

CICR

The "civilianisation" of the contemporary armed conflicts / Giulio Bartolini

Document type:	Article
Title:	The "civilianisation" of the contemporary armed conflicts
Host item entries:	Select proceedings of the European society of international law,
Author zone:	Giulio Bartolini
General Note:	Photocopies
Language(s):	eng
Abstract:	One of the salient characteristics of several contemporary armed conflicts has been the tendency towards their "civilianisation". This term of art may describe the increased role of a heterogeneous series of actors in present-day conflicts who, while they assume an active role in hostilities, can hardly be qualified as "combatants". Consequently, under IHL they would be included in the residual category of "civilians", imposing the need to clarify legal consequences related to the involvement of civilians in hostilities, mainly regarding the obscure notion of "direct participation".
Keyword in French:	CIVIL PARTICIPATION CONFLIT ARME DISTINCTION CIVIL-COMBATTANT ENTREPRISE SECURITE
Keyword in English:	CIVILIAN PARTICIPATION ARMED CONFLICT DISTINCTION BETWEEN CIVILIAN AND COMBATANT COMPANY SECURITY
Authors:	Bartolini, Giulio

Call number	Disponability / Due date
345.29/143 (Br.)	Available