

CICR

Unaccountable : the current state of private military and security companies / Marcus Hedahl

Document type:	Article
Title:	Unaccountable : the current state of private military and security companies
Author zone:	Marcus Hedahl
Host item entries:	Criminal justice ethics,
Languages:	English
Abstract:	The current accountability system for private military and security contractors (PMSCs) is woefully inadequate, and mere enhancements in oversight cannot hope to remedy that failing. The article contends that once we recognize the kind of accountability required of PMSCs, we will realize that radical changes in the foundational relationship between PMSCs and the state are required. More specifically, in order to be appropriately accountable, members of PMSCs must become a part of or, at the very least, directly responsible to the legitimate authoritative military or police structures, and there must be a clear and precise delineation of responsibility among public officials for holding individual members of PMSCs criminally liable.
Links:	Numéro spécial de périodique
Authors:	Hedahl, Marcus
Keyword in English:	SECURITY COMPANY CRIMINAL LIABILITY IHL (INTERNATIONAL HUMANITARIAN LAW) ETHICS
Keyword in French:	SECURITE ENTREPRISE RESPONSABILITE PENALE DIH ETHIQUE

Call number	Disponability / Due date
345.29/188	Available